The Hills Will Cradle Thee

Radio release date: March 2, 2010

Bait & Tackle Records, 2009

File under: Folk / Americana / Bluegrass

Lyrics: www.jaredingersol.com/radio

Described by Emmylou Harris as "a cross between Laura Nyro and Rickie Lee Jones, with a bluegrass element lurking"

Lainie Marsh studied music at Boston's Berklee College and subsequently plied the singing and songwriting trades in Los Angeles before coming to Nashville in 1989. With her band, The Cool Miners, she has performed on The Mountain Stage and as a featured artist at both the Nashville Entertainment Extravaganza and Tin Pan South music showcases.

Her songs have been recorded by Emmylou Harris and Cerys Matthews, as well as featured on National Public Radio. Her 2009 CD recording, The Hills Will Cradle Thee, on the independent Bait & Tackle Records label, features a stellar cast of musicians, including Ketch Secor of The Old Crow Medicine Show, pedal steel virtuoso Bucky Baxter, and Kent Goodson, longtime keyboard player with George Jones.

This is a brave record, down home and exotic at once, from an Appalachian artist not worried about getting the Appalachian thing right. The Hills Will Cradle Thee surpasses hackneyed narratives of the coal mining experience to achieve a unique chronicle of one mountaineer's odyssey through what lies yonder, delivered up with a maverick vocal style.
